New York, Aug. 10.—William J. Gaknor, mayor of New York, lies in St. Mary's hospital tonight with two segments of a split bullet fired yesterday by James J. Gallagher, who sought to assassinate him, still burted in his neek and mouth, but he has shown not one alarming symptom. It is beyond human power to say whether he will recover, for not even the most repowned specialist can say whether hood poisoning will be the aftermath, but as yet the mayor's temperature has given no cause for alarm on this score. Quartered in a larger and better lighted room in the hospital, the mayor lighted room in the hospital, the mayor chais pleasantly with those who are allowed to see him and confidently predicts that he will be out in a few days. As yet he has not discussed in any way the tragedy of yesterday nor is he even aware of the identity of his assailant. It was reported yesterday that he inquired the man's name soon after the shooting, but this proves to be an error. And although familiar with Gallagher's annoying letters and his persistent attempts to obtain rehis persistent attempts to obtain re-histatement as a night watchman in the dock department, the mayor does not know that it was he who fired the shot. Aside from deploring that he should have been fired upon for doing his duty, he has in no way criticized his assailant and maintains a marked aversion to discussing the invident aversion to discussing the incident.

Highest Temperature 100 3-5. Highest Temperature 100 3-5.

The mayor's highest temperature during the day was 100 3-5. As septicaemia, or blood poisoning, invariably indicates its beginning and spread by a rise in the patient's temperature, the nearly normal standard of today was one of the most cheering signs to his physicians. His appetite is good, aithough his diet is necessarily i mited to broths and liquid foods; he us shown great stamina of body and mind, and, so far as those who talked with him can learn, he is not worrying greatly can learn, he is not worrying greatly over the outcome.
